Cyber-bullying and suicide represent further risks to young people. Recently, the phenomenon of 'cyber self-harm' has emerged as a practice that appears to be fuelled by social media and their structures of visibility and performance. In August 2013, 14-year-old UK teen Hannah Smith committed suicide after being harassed on the Sexting can have devastating results. Here is a very interesting and shocking article in Psychology Today by Elizabeth Meyer, Ph.D about sexting and suicide. Even though it is from 2009, most of the article still rings true, and unfortunately not much has been done to help victims of sexting cases that got out of hand and the bullying/cyberbullying that almost always follows.
